"ALL FOR A GIRL" ENTERTAINS

THE SAME MAY BE SAID OF POTGLAS FAIRBANKS.

which After All Is the Function of Plays and Actors-A Comedy Rather Than a Drama and Concerns a Young Woman Who Has Absolutely Too Much Money.

The third new star to be introduced in this three-weeks-old theatrical season. Douglas Fairbanks, made his bow last night at the Bijou Theatre in Rupert Hughes's play, "All for a Girl," and, like the others, came through with colors flying. Not that Mr. Fairbanks has become a great actor; he hasn't. Nor has Mr Hughes written a play that will make much of a dent in theatrical history. Between them they supply simply a good evening's entertainment, and in that they achieved probably all they set out to do. The play might better have been called a comedy, for its success will come as a result of the fun and the bright lines rather than through skill of dramatic construction. Mr. Hughes, who was forced to make the inevitable speech to the howling first nighters, admitted that the playwright sometimes constructs his work from old and well seasoned timbers. Some of them show in his new play: but, after all, what does it matter?

His theme is the difficulty of being a girl with $10,000,000 and finding the right sort of a fellow with whom to share it. His heroine is beset with fortune hunters. Their work is so coarse that she mistrusts the motives of any man who shows an interest in her. That comes out in the first act, as does the fact that the hero, a youngster whose father went broke in Wall Street, hasn't a cent and almost considers marrying for money.

As for the rest of the act, which is the poorest in the play, it serves simply to introduce a number of conventional characters, most of whom happily disappear immediately.

Of course the young gentleman who is broke eventually marries the young lady with all the money. It may be something of a strain on the credulity of those who are hypercritical when the author sends the girl into the wilds of New Hampshire to pose as a poor typewriter, hoping to find the one who will love her for herself alone. especially as the young gentleman, too, is pretending to be the possessor of a $25 a week salary when he wins her, but it makes a pretty love story and it's interesting and amusing even if not always convincing.

Mr. Fairbanks, of course, is the youngster. His acting is straightforward and forceful, although the part does not call for any great show of dramatic skill. His youthful enthusiasm was real; he made love as though he meant it and his smile was a delight. He also made the most of the humor in his lines and got an especially good response from his audience when he remarked: "Tom Lawson has it right. The only way to make big money is to take small amounts from a lot of people."

He also had one about hard times that hit. "Sure, business is looking up," he remarked, after he had lost his $25 a week job and was about to be evicted from the flat to which he took his millionaire wife, because he was too proud to use a cent of her money. "It's so flat on its back it can't look anywhere else."

An actress who is not at all well known to New Yorkers, Miss Adelaide Manola, takes the leading feminine part. Her acting was always pleasant and she created a listinctly favorable impression. Of the others Miss Harriet Otis Dellenbaugh made a middle aged matchmaking society woman true to life and Miss Jane Corcoran added much to the gayety of the piece. Her picture of a saleslady on a vacation, which suggested Gertrude Quinlan in "The College Widow" just a bit although a trifle erdrawn, had its delicious moments such as the one when she assured a fainting girl that a bottle of gin, which she ran to get, was the real, imported article which was given to her by a genn'leman frien' of hers who was a smuggler.

It's a bright, pleasant little play, this "All for a Girl." Lots of people who go to be amused rather than to approve of the elevation of the drama will like it imadelphia, but Said They Did. The American liner Philadelphia, in unusually early yesterday from Southampton and Cherbourg, found not enough room to berth, as the docks were occupied by the St. Louis and the Zeeland. After landing her passengers at the end of the Red Star pier she went out in the stream and anchored until the St. Louis sailed at 10 o'clock and made room for her.

There were many theatrical folk aboard the Philadelphia, and many more on the pier to greet the voyagers. In the mixup of greeters and greeted the reporters found themselves forced to interview many of the greeters, who declared they had just arrived. A later look over the passenger list enabled the reporters to straighten out things.

TAILOR SUES JACK RAINIER. Wants 8500 for an Assault for Which Rainier Was Fined 65.

STAMFORD, Conn., Aug. 22.-Jack Rainler, Yale sophomore, and Horace Flanigan of New York were arrested here late this afternoon on a body writ in a civil action brought by Barnett Isenberg, a ladies' tailor. He seeks $500 damages for a beating he says they gave him Wednesday.

The papers were served by Deputy Sheriff Hendrie, who accepted a cash bond from Rainier's father. The cases come up September 1.

Early in the day Rainier was fined $5 in admitted striking Isenberg and said he did so because the tailor said that Miss Flanigan, Horace's sister and Rainier's flancee, was not a lady. She is the daughter of a New York brewer and her folks, with the Rainiers, are summering at Sound Beach, Conn. Isenberg had done some work for her. the city court here for the assault. He work for her.

"That was too much for me," said Rainier in court, "and I slapped him."

"He went at Jack with a pair of shears," testified Flanigan, "and his assistant came out of a rear room with another pair and an ironing board. We took the things away from them and then waited for the police to come." Flanigan was not prosecuted criminally.

Rainier's father, J. Y. Rainier, an automobile manufacturer, was with the boys during the court proceedings. Later when the papers were served in the civil suit be and Mrs. Rainier declared that it was nothering but an attempt to hold up their son. "We will fight this thing to the last ditch, and we'll spend a good deal more than $500 if necessary to vindicate our boys. When it comes to a showdown," said the father, "it will be seen that Jack had plenty of provocation and really was lenient with this tailor, almost too lenient."

LILLIAN ALBERTSON MARRIED. Leading Woman of "Paid in Full" Company

Becomes Mrs. Abraham Levy. Lillian Albertson, leading woman of Paid in Full" company, now playing at Weber's Theatre, and Abraham Levy, a b okmaker, were married yesterday. The ceremony was done by a Justice and was private. Resides the two witnesses the only person present was Mrs. Josiah Albertson, mother of the bride. Mr. Albertson, her father, was unable to be present. He is in Kansas City on business.

is in Kansas City on business.

Miss Albertson is a California girl and made her stage début in San Francisco seven years ago yesterday. The wedding was decided upon for this date because of the anniversary. Mr. and Mrs. Levy left for Atlantic City immediately after the performance of "Paid in Full" last night. They will remain only over Sunday, and Mrs. Levy will return to work on the stage on Monday night.

PETER HARTMAN IS DEAD. But His Place at the Battery Will Still Bear His Name.

Peter Hartman, who has provided more refreshment to local and deep sea skippers and sailor folk from all parts of the world than any other man in the saloon and hotel business along the water front, died on Friday at the home of his mother in Erie, Pa. He left his place at 58 Whitehall street

He left his place at 38 Whitehall street three weeks ago apparently in fair health to visit his mother. Four days before his death, he sold out to A. H. Sievers & Co. He had been a valet before going into the saloon business and was also an all around sport. Many ship and tugboat captains com-pleted deals in the cafe of "Hartman's." The new management will retain the name Hartman was 50 years old and leaves a

He is a member of the Racquet and Tennis, Union and Harvard clubs of this city. No date has been set for the wedding.

Mr. and Mrs. George Peabody Eustis probably will stay in New York after a European trip on which they start early in November. They had a very pretty wedding on Thursday at the Hermitage, the summer home of Mr. and Mrs. William A. Street, on the Rumson road.

The wedding of Miss Bowditch and Francis Otway Byrd will take place next Tuesday at Albany. Mr. Byrd's attendants will include Nicholas Biddle, Thomas Crimmins, Charles Dana Draper, Charles W. Hanford, F. L. Higgins, J. L. Saltonstall and Frederick

This week will see the windup of the Newport season, practically, though some cottagers will stay for the Horse Show, which begins on September 1. Boxes are held by Alfred G. Vanderbilt, who will have friends with him for the occasion at Oakland Farm, and Mr. and Mrs. Reginald C. land Farm, and Mr. and Mrs. Reginald C. Vanderbilt, who will have a house party at Sandy Point, their Portsmouth place. Mr. and Mrs. John R. Drexel will arrive from Europe too late to occupy their box. Commodore and Mrs. Elbridge T. Gerry will be in the box they have secured, with members of their family. They will go on afterward to their place in the Catskills before returning to their town house. Mr. and Mrs. H. McK. Twombly, who are still abroad, have one of the boxes. Mrs. William B. Leeds has a box, and also Capt. and Mrs. Philip M. Lydig, who will soon return to town.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward J. Berwind will give the last of their series of dances for the season next Saturday night at their Newport establishment. They had a large party last night, preceded by a dinner. Informal dances were given on Wednesday night by Mrs. T. Shaw Safe at Ocean Lawn and on Thursday by Mrs. William Gammell.

Mrs. James P. Kernochan, who has given several dinners and affairs in the Newport season, will give a dinner to-morrow night.

Johnston Livingston, Jr., has been the guest of Paul Rainey during the week at Newport. T. Suffern Tailer has passed much of his time there for the past several days with Mr. and Mrs. Gould. Paul J. Rainey after the Horse Show will take a shooting party to the far West. This will include Ogden Livingston Mills. Alexander Brown, Joseph Harriman and others.

An out of town wedding of the week will be that next Wednesday of Miss Florence A. Ke.ode and Richard M. Webster at Fair mont, Minn. The bride is the only daughmont, Minn. The bride is the only daugnter of the late Thomas J. Knode and comes of an old Maryland family. Her mother, now Mrs. Thomas K. Bottomley of Winnebago, Minn., was Miss Emma Edson of Wisconsin. Mr. Webster, who is a Kentuckian, has for several years held the place of special counsal in the Post Office Department at Washington, where the couple will be at home to their friends after October 1 in an apartment at the Revere. They will pass their honeymoon at Niagara and in Canada

Next Friday Miss Alice Grosvenor will give her bridesmaids dinner at the cottage of her mother, Mrs. William Grosvenor, at Newport. Her wedding with Dudley Davis takes place there on August 31.
